EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Talk to Mutendwah Foundation is a youth and women-centered organization established in 2021 to promote mental health, emotional well-being, and economic empowerment among vulnerable communities in Kenya. Founded from lived experiences surrounding disability inclusion and caregiver support, the Foundation has grown from a grassroots outreach initiative into a transformative platform that empowers young women and youth through mental health support, life skills development, digital literacy, and entrepreneurship training.

The Foundation currently focuses on supporting unemployed young mothers aged 18–29 living within Nairobi's informal settlements and low-income communities. The target beneficiaries are Kenyan young mothers who possess at least a basic Form Four level of education but remain unemployed and are struggling to make ends meet for themselves and their children.
Many of these young women face poverty, online exploitation, cyber harassment, gender-based violence, early motherhood, and limited access to sustainable economic opportunities.

To address these challenges, Talk to Mutendwah Foundation has partnered with Cisco Networking Academy through the Skills Empower Program to provide practical, inclusive, and safe digital empowerment training. The initiative combines digital literacy, cybersecurity awareness, soft skills development, and mental health support to equip young mothers with the knowledge, confidence, and resilience needed to participate safely and productively in the digital economy.

With the increasing use of digital platforms for employment, networking, and income generation, many young mothers turn to online spaces in search of jobs and financial support opportunities.

However, due to limited digital literacy and lack of cybersecurity awareness, many are exposed to dangerous online interactions, cybercrime, digital fraud, manipulation, and gender-based digital violence. Cases of young women being harmed or exploited after meeting individuals online continue to rise, creating significant mental health challenges, emotional distress, insecurity, and economic vulnerability.

To address these challenges, Talk to Mutendwah Foundation has partnered with Cisco Networking Academy through the Skills Empower Program to provide practical, inclusive, and safe digital empowerment training. The initiative combines digital literacy, cybersecurity awareness, soft skills development, and mental health support to equip young mothers with the knowledge, confidence, and resilience needed to participate safely and productively in the digital economy.

The Foundation delivers training through three key program areas. The first is Basic Computer Packages, which introduces participants to essential computer skills such as Microsoft Word, Excel, PowerPoint, internet use, email communication, and online professionalism.

The second is Artificial Intelligence (AI) Skills, where participants learn how to responsibly use AI tools to create professional CVs, cover letters, improve productivity, and access employment opportunities. The third is Digital Marketing and Cybersecurity Awareness, which equips participants with introductory digital marketing skills while educating them on online safety, cyber threats, privacy protection, and prevention of digital harassment.

The Foundation combines digital empowerment with mental health support, mentorship, and life skills training to build confidence and resilience among young mothers. Over the next three years, it aims to reach 2,000 young mothers across Nairobi through accessible and inclusive community-based programs.

PROJECT ACTIVITIES.

Talk to Mutendwah Foundation implements a range of integrated activities aimed at empowering unemployed young mothers aged 18–29 in Nairobi's informal settlements through digital skills training, mental health support, and economic empowerment.

One key activity is recruitment and community mobilization, where the Foundation identifies and enrolls eligible young mothers who have at least a Form Four education level and are actively seeking employment or income opportunities. Awareness campaigns are conducted in communities to ensure inclusion of vulnerable and unemployed participants.

The second activity is digital skills training, implemented through the partnership with Cisco Networking Academy under the Skills Empower Program.

Participants are trained in basic computer packages, including Microsoft Word, Excel, PowerPoint, internet use, and email communication. They are also introduced to artificial intelligence tools for CV writing, cover letters, and productivity enhancement.

Another core activity is digital marketing and cybersecurity awareness training, where young mothers are equipped with skills to safely navigate online platforms, identify cyber threats, prevent online exploitation, and explore digital income opportunities such as online business and freelancing.

The Foundation also conducts mental health and psychosocial support activities, including counseling sessions, mentorship programs, life skills training emotional resilience building, and peer support groups to enhance confidence and well-being.

Additional activities include monitoring and evaluation, community outreach, stakeholder engagement, and partnerships development to ensure program effectiveness and sustainability.

Through these structured activities, the Foundation aims to reach and train 2,000 young mothers over three years, enabling them to become digitally skilled, mentally strong, and economically independent.

SWOT ANALYSIS

Talk to Mutendwah Foundation has several strengths that position it as a strong community-based organization focused on empowering unemployed young mothers in Nairobi's informal settlements. One major strength is its integrated approach that combines mental health support, digital literacy, cybersecurity awareness, soft skills, and economic empowerment. The Foundation's partnership with Cisco Networking Academy through the Skills Empower Program provides access to credible digital training resources and strengthens program quality. The organization also has a strong grassroots understanding of the social and economic challenges affecting vulnerable young mothers.

However, the Foundation faces weaknesses such as limited financial resources, inadequate training equipment, and insufficient access to computers and internet connectivity. Limited staffing and technical trainers may also affect the organization's ability to scale programs quickly. In addition, many beneficiaries have minimal exposure to technology despite having basic Form Four education.

The Foundation has significant opportunities due to the growing demand for digital skills, online employment, and cybersecurity awareness among youth in Kenya. Partnerships with government institutions, NGOs, and private sector organizations can expand training opportunities and sustainability. The organization also aims to reach 2,000 young mothers within Nairobi over the next three years.

Key threats include rising cybercrime, online exploitation, unemployment, economic instability, and donor dependency, which may affect both beneficiaries and long-term program sustainability.

MISSION,VISION AND CORE VALUES

Mission.

The mission of Talk to Mutendwah Foundation is to promote mental health, emotional well-being, digital literacy, and economic empowerment among vulnerable young mothers and youth through inclusive training, mentorship, psychosocial support and community - based programs. The Foundation seeks to equip unemployed young mothers from Nairobi's informal settlements with practical digital and soft skills that improve employability, online safety, and sustainable livelihoods.

SHORT-TERM, MEDIUM-TERM, AND LONG-TERM GOALS

Short-term goals(1 year)

Talk to Mutendwah Foundation aims to establish accessible and community-based digital empowerment programs targeting unemployed young mothers aged 18–29 within Nairobi's informal settlements. During this phase, the organization seeks to recruit and train the first group of beneficiaries in basic computer packages, artificial intelligence tools, digital marketing, and cybersecurity awareness through its partnership with Cisco Networking Academy. The Foundation also aims to strengthen mental health support and soft skills training through mentorship, counseling, and emotional resilience programs.

Medium-term goals(2-3 years)

The Foundation aims to expand its outreach and train at least 2,000 young mothers across different areas within Nairobi. During this period, the organization seeks to strengthen partnerships with government institutions, NGOs, and private sector organizations to improve sustainability and employment opportunities for beneficiaries. Additional goals include improving access to computers, internet connectivity, and safe learning spaces while increasing awareness on cyber safety, online exploitation prevention, and digital inclusion.

Long-term goals(5 years and beyond)

In the long term, the Foundation seeks to establish a sustainable digital empowerment and mental wellness hub for vulnerable young mothers and youth in Kenya. The organization aims to create pathways for employment, entrepreneurship, and financial independence through advanced digital skills and innovation programs. It also seeks to become a leading community-based organization advocating for mental health, digital safety, women empowerment, and inclusive economic opportunities for vulnerable populations across Kenya.

BUDGET AND RESOURCE ALLOCATION.

Talk to Mutendwah Foundation will allocate resources strategically to ensure effective implementation of its digital empowerment, mental health, and economic empowerment programs targeting unemployed young mothers aged 18–29 from Nairobi's informal settlements. The budget framework is designed to support training delivery, participant support, operational sustainability, and long-term program growth as the organization works toward reaching at least 2,000 beneficiaries within three years.

A significant portion of the budget will be allocated to training and learning resources, including computers, internet connectivity, projectors, software, cybersecurity learning materials, AI training tools, and basic computer package manuals. Funds will also support certification programs and digital learning content provided through the Foundation's partnership with Cisco Networking Academy.

Resources will also be directed toward mental health and psychosocial support services, including mentorship sessions, counseling programs, life skills workshops, and emotional resilience training to support the well-being of participants. Additional allocations will support staff salaries and facilitation costs, including trainers, counselors, program coordinators, and technical support personnel responsible for implementing and monitoring the programs.

The Foundation will further invest in community outreach and participant mobilization, transport, communication, monitoring and evaluation, and administrative operations to ensure effective service delivery. Special attention will be given to creating disability-inclusive and safe learning environments for vulnerable young mothers.

To strengthen sustainability, the organization will pursue partnerships, grants, donor support, and in-kind contributions from stakeholders. Transparent financial management and accountability systems will guide all resource allocation processes to maximize impact and ensure efficient utilization of funds.

MONITORING AND EVALUATION.

Talk to Mutendwah Foundation will implement a structured Monitoring and Evaluation (M&E) framework to ensure accountability, measure progress, and assess the overall impact of its programs targeting unemployed young mothers in Nairobi's informal settlements. The M&E system will track both quantitative and qualitative outcomes to determine the effectiveness of digital skills training, mental health support, and economic empowerment initiatives.

Key performance indicators will include the number of young mothers enrolled and trained, completion rates, competency in basic computer packages, artificial intelligence tools, digital marketing, and cybersecurity awareness.

Additional indicators will measure improvements in employability, income-generating activities, digital confidence, and online safety behavior. Mental health indicators such as emotional resilience, self-esteem, and communication skills will also be assessed.

Data collection methods will include attendance registers, pre- and post-training assessments, participant feedback forms, interviews, focus group discussions, and trainer reports. Regular monitoring visits will be conducted to ensure quality delivery of training programs, including those implemented in partnership with Cisco Networking Academy.

The Foundation will produce quarterly and annual reports to document progress, challenges, and lessons learned. Findings from these evaluations will be used to improve program design, strengthen implementation strategies, and enhance overall impact.

Through continuous monitoring, feedback, and learning, the Foundation aims to ensure transparency, accountability, and sustainability while delivering meaningful change in the lives of vulnerable young mothers.

PROJECT SUSTAINABILITY SUMMARY

Talk to Mutendwah Foundation is committed to ensuring the long-term sustainability and impact of its digital empowerment and mental health programs targeting unemployed young mothers in Nairobi's informal settlements. The Foundation aims to build sustainable community-based programs that continue creating opportunities for vulnerable young women beyond the initial project implementation period.

The project's sustainability strategy is anchored on strategic partnerships, capacity building, community ownership, and resource mobilization. Through its partnership with Cisco Networking Academy under the Skills Empower Program, the Foundation will continue providing access to internationally recognized digital and cybersecurity training resources.

Additional collaborations with government institutions, private sector organizations, NGOs, and community leaders will strengthen mentorship, employment opportunities, and technical support for beneficiaries.

The Foundation will also invest in training beneficiaries with practical and marketable digital skills such as basic computer packages, artificial intelligence tools, digital marketing, and cybersecurity awareness to improve employability, entrepreneurship, and access to online income opportunities. By equipping young mothers with sustainable skills, the project aims to reduce unemployment and long-term dependency.

To strengthen operational sustainability, the organization will pursue diversified funding sources, grants, donor support, and in-kind contributions while maintaining transparent financial management and accountability systems. Community engagement and mentorship networks will also help create peer support systems that encourage continued learning and empowerment.

Through continuous monitoring, partnerships, and inclusive training programs, the Foundation seeks to establish a lasting impact by building a generation of mentally healthy, digitally skilled, and economically empowered young mothers capable of improving their livelihoods and contributing positively to their .communities.

“Empowering young mothers with digital skills, confidence, and opportunities for a better future.”
